Keywords: the priorities of program aims of social and economic development of the region, the contradiction of the system of program aims, the system of government management of social and economic development of the region, the system of aims and multilevel system of priorities, the program of social and economic development.

The author shows how the system “goal - the method of achieving the goal” is applied for the grounded formation of the aims and tasks of the programs of social and economic development of the region, when the program goals and tasks are coordinated, and local goals do not substitute the valued ones. Great emphasis is paid to evaluating the ability to accomplish strategic qualitative goals of the programs of social and economic development of the country and regions.

In the practice of social and economic development of the region, in particular, while working out the Programs of social and economic development, quite often we come across the errors connected with the formation of the system of goals and tasks. For example, one multilevel strategic aim is formulated, where first come economic reference points, the strategic purpose of which is - the improvement of the life quality of population. Why is such structure of strategic purpose not absolutely true?

From the formal point of view, if the program is called social and economic, so social reference points should stand ahead of the economic ones. As economy is the tool for achieving the goals of social well-being, the strategic social purposes in relation to strategic economic targets are the leading ones (fig. 1).

The plan in fig.1 shows that one of the major means of achieving social well-being is the effective system of government social development of the region and country as a whole. As a result there is “strategic aim targeted on forming the effective “social” government of the region and country as a whole.

As economic system is the tool for achieving social purposes, the second level of strategic purposes of the Program SER UR is connected with constructing effective economy. In this case the basic means of achieving desirable parameters of regional economy is the system of the government economics (fig. 2).
