This paper considers the transitional relations on a monopolistic stage of capitalism, which participate in disruption of basic positions of capitalism (commodity, capital, added value of free competition). Transitional relations are included in economic system of monopolistic capitalism, participate in a regulation of capital economy.

Transitional production relations appeared on a stage of the capitalism in its own internal boards.

But where, in what sphere of the production relations of capitalism formate the elements of the new economic formation? Definition of such object is base on the identification of elements which take a part in disruption of commodity production, capital and added value, competition.

Socialization of production, concentration of capital became a cause of the appearance of capital monopoly. The domination of monopoly defines the crucial feature what characterize genesis of transitional forms and making capitalism in general into transitional type of production. It includes the main difference of monopolistic stage from capitalism if free competence.

In a system of transitional economic forms on a monopolistic stage of capitalism have such elements what are opposite to commodity.

The connection between production and consumption in capitalism of free competition was made by commodity-market way.

Elements of conforming to plan start to realize functions of the regulation of capital economy in general what was totally belong to laws of commodity production. But the monopolistic planning don't cover all capital economy. It is not removes the anarchy, spontaneity in capital household. The dominant role in regulation of capital household belongs to commodity-market relations¹.

Setting of the direct the part chains between production and consumption before the process of production in monopolistic economy says about elements of planning. On the level of the capitalistic household in general combine two opposite forms of regulation, appears elements of planning.

Dominate form of capital corresponds with special form of the added value - monopoly extra-profit.
